PREFACE

THIS Vocabulary of the Kikuyu language is spoken by one of the most numerous tribes in the British East African Protectorate. Although many Europeans have from time to time either passed through the country or resided in it, nothing in the shape of a vocabulary of the language has so far appeared in print. The compiler therefore sends it forth with a certain amount of misgiving. Many mistakes will, no doubt, be found as this language is more fully known. Those, however, who know what it is to reduce a new language, and what it is to have to search for every word, and to get the same often from very unwilling and unintelligent natives, will not be too critical in this case.

The collection was made in the district of Kikuyu, called by Europeans Fort Smith (native name, Kabeti), during the years 1901 and 1902, when the writer was stationed in that locality by the Church Missionary Society.

The country of Kikuyu is one of the most fertile and healthy districts of British East Africa. It is situated in the north-western portion of the Protectorate, and is practically on the Equator. The Uganda Railway, from about mile 326 to mile 360, runs through the south-western portion of the country, and forms almost the boundary of the same. The district over which this language is spoken, with few modifications, stretches away in a north-easterly direction from the railway until it embraces in its folds that great landmark, Mount Kenia (native name, Kirinyaga). The altitude of the country varies from 4000 feet to the 18,000 feet of Kenia. The inhabited parts are from 4000 to 7000 feet. The climate is one of the pleasantest and healthiest in Eastern Equatorial Africa, and is well suited for the residence of Europeans. It varies from moderate tropical heat to the cold of perpetual snow.

The people occupying this highly-favoured country are estimated to be anything from 200,000 to 300,000. They constitute one of the hardest and most muscular races of East Africa. The readiness with which they are now giving themselves to manual work on the farms of the many white men resident in their country, augurs well for the future of agriculture in this part of East Africa. The district lends itself to the cultivation of European and other foods. At the present time many Europeans are purchasing land and settling in the country round about the Nairobi and Kikuyu stations of the Uganda Railway.

This Vocabulary is sent out tentatively in the earnest hope that it will not only be a help to these in their dealings with the inhabitants of the country, but also, and more especially, that it will be of value to those engaged in the great work of evangelizing Kikuyu.

ENGLISH-KIKUYU VOCABULARY.

NOTE.

THE system of orthography adopted in this Vocabulary is broadly that used by the Royal Geographical Society of Great Britain; the main features of the same being, that the consonants are pronounced as in English, and the vowels as in Italian. Every letter is pronounced. In the district of Fort Smith (native name, Kabeti), where this collection was made, S and Z does not appear to be used, Th always taking their places. L and R are often indistinguishable, or are used interchangeably. The reader's attention is also called to the words in which ng occurs, as koteng'era, with a point after ng. This must be pronounced koteng-era, not koten-gera. Some words have both the nasal ng and the g hard sound, as kuing'gata.

LIST OF ABBREVIATIONS, ETC.

n. = noun.	adv. = adverb.
pron. = pronoun.	int. = interjection.
adj. = adjective.	pass. = passive.
conj. = conjunction.	nev. = neuter.
prep. = preposition.

OBSERVE: A. The Infinitive of the verb is in all cases given.

B. Where the plural of the noun is the same as the singular, s. & p. appear after the singular. Where the plural takes a different form, the same appears in brackets after the singular, as "Servant, Mwetereri" (Etereri); or the particular prefix is given in brackets, as Gechunji (I-). In this case the plural prefix (I-) takes the place of the singular prefix Ge-, viz. Gechunji (singular); Ichunji (plural).
